It is the festival of lights. (Dussehra) is a traditional festival called Diwali. My mother has invited our big family over for dinner. She is preparing the main course and the starters. I am kind of helping my maid to make the chocolate pudding. The other helper is setting up the table and the lights for the dinner. Suddenly the chandelier flickers and stops to work. My mother quickly runs and calls up the electrician who comes and fixes it. As I sit down to rest, the door bell rings. I get up to open, and my family, friends and cousins are all waiting to ~~hand~~ clump me over with the presents. The enter and all sit on the couch in the middle setting for drinks. We ~~play~~ talk and joke around until my ~~the~~ cook calls us inside as the food is ready. We get comfortable on the long marble dining table and start eating. The food is immensely appreciated. I see around and everyone is having a merry time. For me this is my real home.
