5. Starbucks Gift Card.
6. Lord of the Rings, One Ring.
7. Tailor's tape.

10. IKEA succulent.

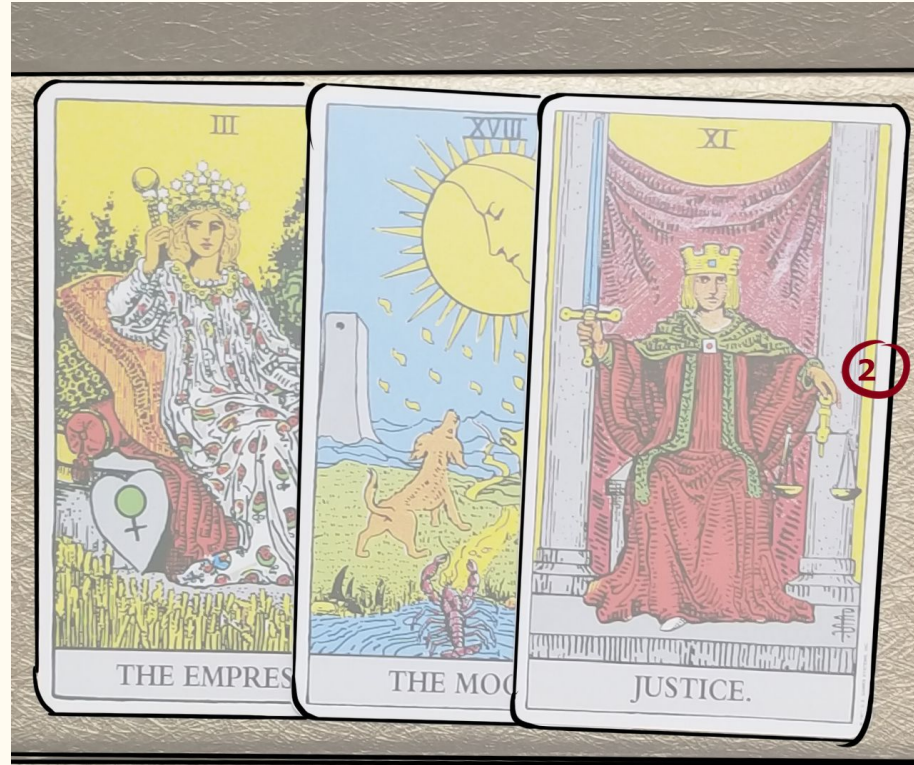

The Gold Box!

The box itself was given to me by my boyfriend as part of a larger gift. The box was so beautiful, I couldn't throw it away.

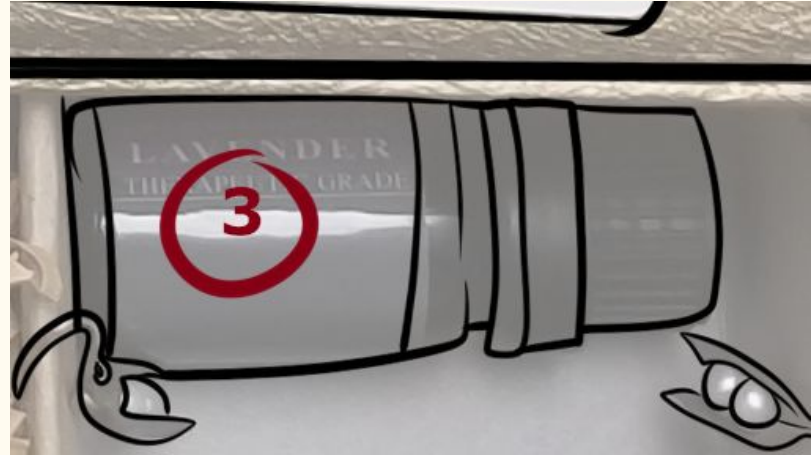

Tarot Cards

Every year for Christmas, my dad gets me a box of tarot cards. I am a Pagan, but I don't actually know how to do tarot anymore.

Essential Oils

I like the smell of Lavender essential oils. They help me with my sleep and just generally help to promote a calm atmosphere when I'm working.

Peas-in-a-pod earrings

My Aunt gave me these earrings when I was 15. She has the matching necklace because we're peas in a pod. They're one of the only pairs of earrings I actually wear.

Starbucks gift card.

I love coffee and spend way too much money at Starbucks. My mom has taken to sending me gift cards so that I don't spend all my money solely on coffee.

Lord of the Rings, One ring.

My boyfriend gave the ring to me as the main part of the golden box gift. Inside the box was a cylindrical word puzzle which I had to solve, when I solved it, the puzzle opened and contained two rings. He has the other ring, which he wears on a necklace.

Tailor's tape.

In highschool, I won awards for costume design, most of my designs being based off of Roman mythological characters.

Warcraft Charm bracelet

When I was 5, my dad introduced me to World of Warcraft, an online video game. I've been playing it for almost 10 years consecutively and it's a big part of my life.

Chai tea bag.

Chai is my favorite type of tea, and my current most common order at Starbucks.

IKEA succulent.

Moving to New York City was a big step for me, I bought this succulent to help me decorate my dorm here at Parsons. Although this succulent is fake, I would like to have my own live little succulent garden one day.
