

Stumbling across a nearby park, she notices people lounging around, reading, creating, and contemplating. Scattered throughout are children playing, and one curious little girl approaches the man writing poems.