

After she and several others ask for poems, she reads hers over many times, digesting it on her walk back home.